details

You've seen the Shaft remake 17 times, become obsessed with Curtis Mayfield's "Superfly" and you're ready to throw your own pimps and ho's party. Where to go to properly suit up? Check out Ozzie Dots. It's chock-full of vintage pinstripe, velvet and blindingly bright pimp suits in colors like lemon yellow and deep purple. To complete the look, the store sells lots of tacky, fur-trimmed fedoras. The outfits are so convincing that a guy walking out in one of these ensembles might just be stopped by the cops. For the ladies, there's packaged mini-dresses called "Cream and Sugar." The dresses are equally suited for a party or cruising Hollywood Boulevard. They're made of crushed velvet, have plunging necklines and imitation zebra fur collars. "Anything pimp or ho just flies out of here," says Ozzie Dots' owner, Daniel Hazen. The back of the store is stocked with cheerleader, cornrow and doo-wop wigs should the would-be ho want a different hairdo for her party. A favorite with wardrobe people from the studios, this retro emporium has everything you need to look and feel cheap. While pimp and ho parties are still the rage in L.A., Hazen says this year Hugh Hefner and Playboy bunny parties are growing in popularity. And Ozzie Dots is right there, with vintage smoking jackets, silk bathrobes and lots of slutty-looking wares for the occasional pinup girl.
